"The Second Mrs Tanqueray."

COMPANY.

There was a fairly large assembly at the Theatre Royal on Saturday night when the Bandmann Comedy Company opened their return visit to the Colony by presenting Arthur W. Pinero's absorbing play "The Second Mrs Tanqueray." The name of Pinero has long been associated with compositions which are strong studies of human character, and "The Second Mrs Tanqueray" is one of his very best. It is eleverly conceived and its theme is such the very end. This the audience on Saturday zoon discovered. The task of sustaining the plot, or plots, for there are ever fresh and unexpected situations developing, falls principally on four characters, and all enhanced her reputation as an actress of she first order. She had the bulk of the heavy work, and her handling of a complex character, calling for translation of emotions ever changing, was indeed very fine. Mr Charles Vane also, as Aubrey Tanqueray, gave a conscientious study of a difficult part, while Mr Thomas Sidney was natural and unaffected in the character of Cayley Drummle. As Ellean Miss Hilda Vaughan was a great success, her general bearing and simple grace being just the thing for the part. The other members of a decidedly talented caste were Miss Lucy Beaumont, Miss Lallie Forsyth, Mr Douglas Vigors, Mr Spencer Geach, Mr Lloyd Lowndes, Mr C. T. Cooke. and Mr Gordon McLeod.

Judging from the high opinions formed on Saturday of the capabilities of the artistes, the brief stay of the Company hould be a most popular one, and doubtless there will be crowded audiences on each of the remaining nights. To-night the well-known play, "What Happened to Jones" will be staged.

LAND OF THE MIDNIGHT SUN.

There was a fair attendance at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday evening when the Rev C. H. Hickling gave an interesting lecture, illustrated by some excellent lantern slides, on the Land of the Midnight Sun. Mr Hickling drew attention to the characteristic natural features of the Norwegian coast and fjord scenery. There is an almost continuous belt of islands along the 1,100 miles of coast, making smooth all the waters. Between this belt and the mainland 1,000 feet above the sea was a greeny-blue mass squeezed in between two dark hills. This Bondhus glacier was as if the upper Thames had been lifted | Hazell's Annual. 3,000 feet and then started down from the mountain saddle, bursting through and over every impediment, whirled into eddies, and raging into foam, and then suddenly etruck rigid. The sun gave the upper part of the glistening whiteness a rosy hue, while fissure and cavern showed turquoise British Journal Photographic blue. From Odde, by Stolkfaerre, the twin falls, Lotefos. were reached.

Haymakers, Hardanger costume, the Bridal Crown, the Matron's headgear were all passed in review and the relationship with these bonny, hardy, sturdy, honest folk, claimed through the Vikings of ancient time. Trendjhem (the York of Norway) with its Cathedral, Statues, and Falls, was duly honoured, Torghatten with its needleeye and the Headless Horseman were exhibited. Tromso (the Paris of the North) introduced the audience to whaling expeditions and the Lapp encampment, about which many interesting facts were stated and their products exhibited.

Views were shown of Hammerfest, the most northerly inhabited town in Europe, and a visit to a whaling station was made yivid. Many views in the Lofoden Islands were shown, illustrating how these peaks and ridges had escaped the grinding of the almost universal ice-cap in a by-gone age. Molde, with its famous picture, Geiranger, the Queen of the Fjords, with its Seven Sisters' Fall, and Bergen, the Liverpool of Norway, were all fully illustrated.

H. K. F. C., 1; H. M. S. BEDFORD, 1. This match was played on the Club's ground on Saturday, and a somewhat unsatisfactory game was seen. The only scoring took place in the opening half when Lyon got through for the sailors, and Williams for the Club. It is worthy of note that for three of the Club's players this was the second game for the after-

League Football.

Y.M.C.A., 1; c. NAVAL YARD, 0.

A rather poor game between these teams was played on Saturday on the Naval Ground, the Yarders being two men short; for the whole of the match. The Saints included Hamilton and Gregory in their ranks, and these men undoubtedly strengthened their side. The only goal of the match was scored in the first half by Lyal.

R.A.M.C., 7; v. B.O.C., 1.

The Medicals won an easy victory at the expense of the B.O.C. on Saturday. They pressed for practically the whole of the first half, and put on five goals, while the Boys responded by netting from a freekick. In the second half the juniors showto better advantage, and the Medicals were only able to add two further points.

Football Notes.

There has been very little of interest occurring in local football circles during the week just ended. No Shield games have 816 been on the card, and only two League contests have been played, none of which have had any effect on the leading teams.

But there has been at least one little sensation, and that was provided by the meeting of the Buffs and the H.M.S. King Alfred in the Army and Navy Oup Competition. For the first time the East Kents suffered defeat. What invests the result with more than passing interest is the fact that both these teams are in the semi-final of the Hongkong Shield Competition. More than that, it would not be surprising to see them both figuring as finalists.

The game to which I have referred was played on Friday, and on the call of time the naval men were two goals in hand. Of course, it was not a case of a runaway victory; the winners had to work hard for points, while it must be admitted that the Buffs had the hardest of luck in not putting on at least one goal. The conditions were the reverse of favourable for a good display of real talent, and in so far as this affected both sides the game can hardly be looked upon as having been a fair trial of the relative merits of the teams. Still, the outcome of the contest certainly serves to indicate that the King Alfreds are one of the very best sides to be seen in the

A meeting of the Buffs and the King Alfreds on a dry turf in ideal conditions would be worth watching. Given such happy circumstances. should slightly favour the chances of the Buffs in spite of their latest experience. But perhaps the Shield final will provide the opportunity for a really satisfactory trial. Anyhow we must wait in patience. LINESMAN.

MORALS AND EDUCATION. MATTHEW ARNOLD died a disappointed man, yet his influence grows with the passing years in the field of education to which he devoted the best thought of his vigorous intellect. Almost alone among his contemporaries he perceived the rocks towards which the nation was drifting. He saw the selfishness, the lack of discipline, the decay of patriotism, the desire for personal case and comfort regardless of others, the shirkng of public duties, which were gro ing up in the wake of the educational system to which we were wedded What Arnold saw in the bud we of a later generation can examine in the full flower of maturity; and the contemplation thereof is anything but pleasant. Yet the deterioration of national character has not proceeded to a point where the application of a remedy can be held to be of no avail. It is still possible, we hold, to bring it back to

A Goods per lilyria undelivered after this harvest has been the result. Modern and scientific thought, economic and political changes, have caused an upheaval in the outlook of the people of to-day, and the necessity for educations readjustment has been an inevitable result. As Professor Sadler, one of the investigators, writes, "Never since the time of the Renaissance and the Reviva of Learning has it been necessary to bring so large a body of new knowledge into educational account. . . . THE KAISER AND HIS GENERALS.

The following is a summary of the im portant article in the January issue of the Deutsche Revese, which the German Emperor read to his generals at their New Year's

The late Chief of the General Staff of the German Army, General Count von Schleiffen, commences with the tention that the Treaty of Frankfort, which closed the war between Germany and France put an end to it in appearance only. Although arms were laid down at its summons, a new war at once began. The war of arms was followed by the war of armaments. with indifference. If they wished to have a my in the future politics of Europe and of the world at large they had to see to it that they did not fall behind France and Germany in the matter of armaments. Newchwang. Thus after a few decades, continues General Schleiffen, the Franco-German contest has led to this result, that nearly all the armies 755 of Europe, the Far East, and America are now in possession of weapons of practically the same value. BATTLEFIELD OF THE FUTURE.

The late Chief of the General Staff then passes to a description of the battlefield in the next European war. Nothing, he says, is seen to betray the enemy's presence save the flashes of his artillery. It will be impossible to realise the presence of the enemy's infantry save that from time to time a thin dark line will be seen to quiver, leap forward, and suddenly disappear. and CHINA carry Intermediate | Cavalry will accomplish their task beyond the range of view of the other two arms. There will be no Napoleon, surrounded by a brilliant staff, glittering upon the neighbouring heights. Even with powerful fieldglasses there would be little for him to see. He would be an easy mark for the enemy's batteries. The General Officer Commanding will be ensconced in a house far to the rear, seated at a large table, where telephone, telegraph, and wireless implements will be at hand. Motor-cars will be wait-

There in a comfortable chair sits the modern Alexander, a map of the battlefield before him! He sends his orders by telephone or by wireless. He receives reports from subordinate generals in their captive balloons or airships.

The battles of the future will be prolonged and weary, but they will not be more bloody than of old-perhaps loss so. The fourteen days of Mukden cost the two combants less than did the few hours of Marsla-Tour.

To deliver a flank attack it is essential to know where the flanks rest. It is to be hoped that this task will be achieved in the future by simhips. The enemy also will have his airships. Victory will be to the one which can rise above the adversary destroy it with a dropped bomb, and then rise rapidly again to escape the flames. CHINES WALL OF FORTIFICATIONS.

Franco-German War France proceeded to build an uninterrupted barrier along the Upper Moselle and the Meuse, which now and Loire-it was assumed that she would seek to avoid the barrier by passing through Belgium at one end or Switzerland at the other. To forestall attack on the right wing France proceeded promptly to fortify the passes of the Jura. On the left wing Belgium came to her assistance. The great highways in the valleys of the Sambre and the Meuse have been sown with forts and behind Antwerp now towers as an impregnable stronghold. Holland followed the example of her neighbour, and in the general panic of German aggres-sion fortified herself strongly. Italy had net long before lost provinces to France. In apprehension that this feverish fortification might prevent her revenge, she met fort with fort, battery with battery. Thus before two decades had claused since the close of the war of 1870 a Chinese wall of fortification had been erected against Germany from the Zuyder Zee to the Mediterranean. The possibility now remained that Italy might join her Garman ally and pour united forces "like a stream bursting its. banks " over the great barrier into France. To prevent this Switzerland fortified her

These imaginary German ambitions of conquest this summarily stifled on south and cast, must now, of course, seek another entlet. As Germany could no longer march peacefully to Paris she would, of course, set out for Moscow. Russis, trambling, sets to work to build a line of fortresses on her frontier, sided in the task by numerous streams and marshes. A barrior was also erected against Austris. Germany's ally. ### THE OPIUM COMMISSION.

SHANGEAL, February 22nd. A brief report dealing with the production and sale of Opium in Holland, based en information received by telegraph, was presented by the Chief Commissioner for the Netherlands, Mr A. A. de Jongh. The Chief Commissioner for Great Britain, in reply to questions put by the American Delegation at a former sitting, read a telegram which he shad received giving details as to the ultimate disposal of the MAKE NOTICE that under No. 5 of the

He opined First Floor. that the results of the Commission were bound to be far-reaching and to have a in good condition, however, need not be two-fold character, direct and indirect. They would take shape eventually in some kind of formal action on the part of the to the West and Tank Lane and Cieverly various Governments represented, and they | Street. would also be productive of sentiment, considered that from the evidence before application being made to the Secretary them it would be possible to reach wise of the Sanitary Board. conclusions, and he hoped that the Commission would pass worthy and practical resolutions on the important problem before them, otherwise the question might be thrown back into the hands of agitators, a result which they would all wish to avoid He concluded by thanking the House for the fine te uper and coertoous spirit which had characterized the proceedings from the beginning.

Tebruarry 23rd. The Commission was occupied during the whole of its sitting in the consideration of Resolutions, based on a study of the Reports of the various Delegations, submitted by the American and British Commissioners. Of eight Resolutions put forward by the former, one was adopted in toto, one accepted after amendment, one was withdrawn, one was negatived, and four were referred back for re-consideration. The British Delegation offered five resolutions of which one was adopted as an amendment to a Resolution submitted by the United States, two were accepted, one was withdrawn after discussion, and one referred back for re-consideration.

Further Resolutions are to be brought forward by the Chinese and Netherlands Commissioners at the next sitting. After they have met with the approval of the Commission, the Resolutions will be submitted to a Committee, for conversion into the form in which they will be finally presented to the respective Governments. The Commission adjourned at 4. 40 p.m. It is anticipated that the labours of the INDU-OHINA STEAM NAVIGATION For MANILA .-Commission will terminate by the end of the first week in March.

February 24th. H. E. Mr Miyaoka, Chief Commissioner for Japan, offered some additional information in reply to a question put to his ations in force with regard to opium in the leased territory of Kuantung.

Two resolutions brought forward conjointly by the American and British Delegation, and embodying the sense of those Resolutions which were referred back for re-consideration at the last meeting, were, after a short discussion, unanimously adopted by the Commission.

The Netherlands brought forward two Resolutions, amplifying in some ways those already accepted by the House. They were criticized by the Chief Commissioner for Great Britain, and by Mr Tang Kuoan, on behalf of the Chinese Delegation. Finally, on the auggestion of Dr. Hamilton Wright and Mr Miyaoka, it was decided to incorporate the contents of the Resolutions in question as a Statement in the Minutes. Mr T'ang Kuo-an then made an eloquent speech in support of four Resolutions which will, to-day, be placed before the Commission by the Chinese Delegation.

The thirteenth Session of the Commission opened at 10.30 a.m. on Feb. 25. Four Resolutions were submitted by the Chinese Delegation for consideration.
